Echoes of the Overthinker

Unfiltered Essays from the Boy Who Watched Everything but Spoke Nothing

VIBHU DHUNNA

Chapter -2

Happy Toxic Relationship.

Relationships, a great thing to which teenagers are most often attracted towards no logical reason except enjoyment. I hope so that you might think of which kind of enjoyment they want. One is pleasure(you know which one, no need to tell) and second is good image in friends. Nothing more than that. This relationship is not only good/bad for girls, but boys too; depends upon you. So, you all might be in so called relationship or not(I don't care), but do you know you are in a 99% Toxic relationship. Of course, you don't! I don't know what your gender will be or are you in a relationship or not, but I'm happy to say that I am out this trap which if taken wrong will definitely ruin my life day by day, moment by moment. Now most of you will definitely think that I am single that's why I am saying this. But alas! You never thinks from other side. I have seen a millions of my friends specially girls to get distant from me 'cause their boyfriend or so called their lovers said so, and the best thing of all this mess they created in their life is that they not only side lined the years old friendship(the minimum was about 1 year) but also instead of asking permission from their parents, if you are willing to ask, they started convincing their boyfriend for hanging out with their friends. What The Heck! It is, isn't it. And this is one the cases I have confronted, and there are millions of others left. Please don't think I am just trolling girls here, because I have seen even worst cases in boys which are not so good to discuss them with you here, but I give full independence of imagination, you can think what you can for and I can bet, you could never reach what could have happened with them.

The weirdest thing of such a relation is that they give name of love to their Nibba-Nibbi style of talking with each other. And for god's sake, if there is any word bigger than cringe, then I will waste no time to use that word for those successfully unsuccessful couples. You could never imagine, seeing such a couple is a different kind of entertainment, so GOATED! I could even make a blockbuster hit drama comedy film exclusively inspired from these Gen-Z lovers. While writing all this rubbish in my laptop, one thing is constantly making me laugh and once I was about to fall from chair due to this laughter that all these lovers who pours showers of love on their partner in 95% cases breaks with each other, LOL! Now thinking about the rest, that small group by god's grace if suits each other, their family issues makes them to take this decision, Never Mind.

I know, after someone will read this text, I will have no empty space for life threatening enemies in my lives and the top ones will be those guys to whom I call my best friend. Well, I am sure they ain't gonna read this text, they loves to read those pseudo love texts from their partners.

You know what, I am very hardly controlling from telling you tales of my friends who are in such a conditions, though all of them are one sided but yet it is as toxic as lead, and all of them can make your stomach ache after laughing too hard for too long. The thing which is stopping me, is first they trusted me with that, and if they read this, they gonna kill me, and second one, I had done something that worked as fuel to burning fire, in the sense, I had added some difficulties in their one-sided love and the things got worst as they become too serious about that, and now I fear of confessing it.

Their conditions, except those made by me, are giving me ground reports of how love in Gen-Z could be like.

The recommendation which I would love to give on the basis of everything I have seen, if you too desperate to be in relationship, that your conditions being single is too worst that even you can't breathe or eat or better say, live without having you Babu-Sona, then all you can do is set clear boundaries.

Just become clear to him/her, no pressure for gifts(specially for boys with tight pockets), no over-possessiveness, no controlling my life.

The biggest problem in today's relation is nothing but, this relation cuts your connections with your years old friends, specially from opposite gender. The reason behind all this mess created is nothing but in-securities which is the biggest blunder in teenagers' relation which will direct the whole arrangement to successfully unsuccessful relation.

I will be ending my thoughts on this topic by saying that maybe love isn't what they show on stories or what they type in lowercase with extra letters; maybe it's quieter, more real, and honestly, if I have to lose myself to be in love, then I'd rather stay single and sane — because fake love might look romantic, but it rots you silently, and I'm done calling that happiness.